

Dreams

TV on the Radio

All your dreams are over now
And all your wings have fallen down
Oh, all your dreams are over now
And all your wings have fallen down She's just like you
So why keep doing what you do?
Why cut a friend?
Why cruise that mean lean to an end? You could have heel toed
To another place
You could have peeled slow
To a better face But your heart can't grieve
For your little dreams
Oh no, your heart can't grieve
Not for your little dreams All your dreams are over now
And all your wings have fallen down
All your dreams are over now
And all your wings have fallen down Broke trust in two
Now no one's looking out for you
Why keep it cruel?
Why waste so much to play the fool? And maybe I'm the fool but I think we'd find
That we could all be so so kind
If you'd just leave your treadmill power trip behind
Oh, leave your treadmill power trip behind And maybe it's best that you're so so blind
It's best that your so, so blind
Because your heart can't grieve
I know your heart can't grieve I know your heart can't grieve
What your eyes won't see
But you were my favorite moment
Of our dead century I know your heart can't grieve
What your eyes won't see
But you were my favorite moment
Of our dead century But all your dreams are over now
And all your wings have fallen down
Oh, all your dreams are over now
And all your wings have fallen down Oh, warfarin' terrapin
Unconfined, undesigned
Undersigned, bantering
Bartering, bellowing Barracking, blundering
Pillaging, plundering
Living and lavishing

Hammerings, harrowingFlourishing, flattening
Leveling, reveling
Wrecking and ravaging
Savoring, savagingOh, warfarrin' terrapin
Unconfined, undesigned
You've got me
Worried and wonderingAll your dreams are over now
And all your wings have fallen down
All your dreams are over now
