

The Last Song Ever

Secondhand Serenade

I wish my life was this song 'cause songs they never die
I could write for years and years, never have to cry
Id show you how I feel without saying a word
I could wrap up both our hearts, I know it sounds absurd
And I saw the tears on your face, I shot you down
And I slammed the door but couldnt make a sound
So please stay sweet my dear, dont hate me now
And I cant tell how this last song ends
The way that I feel tonight, so down, so down
I pray I can swim just so I wont drown
In the waves that crash over me
Im gasping for air, take my hand so I can breath
As I write this last song down
And I saw the tears on your face, I shot you down
And I slammed the door but couldnt make a sound
So please stay sweet my dear, dont hate me now
And I cant tell how this last song ends
The broken glass, your moistened skin
Was everything, was everything
And your broken voice was quivering
Youre everything, youre everything
Scream at me, make it the best I ever had
Laugh out loud, I know it sounds absurd
Scream at me, make it the best I ever had
Youre everything, youre everything
Heartbeats slowing, pains are growing
Does she love you? Thats worth knowing
Youre everything

Songwriters

John Joseph Vesely Published by

JOHN VESELY PUBLISHING Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>