

Johnnie

Evangeline

Johnnie, you've got your head in the clouds --
You've got me screaming out loud, but you can't hear me.
And Johnnie, I think you're blind to my pain --
You've got me going insane; I'm barely breathing. And I've been setting off to go for how long --
I do not know. I'm blowing dandelion kisses trying to turn weeds into wishes;
Trying to make rags into riches over you.
Should've stuck to stars instead, but now my face is turning red
and I remember -- as you always said:
"Don't hold your breath." Johnnie, you just ain't worth the risk,
'Cuz I can't fix these growing pains.
And it's not funny --
You don't know what you're doing to me.
Johnnie, oh baby, it's not your fault. And I've been setting off to go for how long --
I do not know. I'm blowing dandelion kisses trying to turn weeds into wishes;
Trying to make rags into riches over you.
Should've stuck to stars instead, but now my face is turning red and I remember -- as you always said: Wish I may I wish I might Not have the wish I wish tonight. I'm blowing dandelion kisses trying to turn weeds into wishes;
Trying to make rags into riches over you.
Should've stuck to stars instead but now my face is turning red
and I remember -- as you always said:
"Don't hold your breath." You see I'm stuck here, it's true --
Can't you see it's 'cuz of you.
