

Not the Same

Drew Davis

It's not the same, as I wanted it to be
It's not the same, but what could I do when you put those arms around me
And who's to blame for this newfound insecurity
I don't love you, and you're not the one
Yes I swear, I don't love you, and you're not the one
It's not the same, as I pictured it inside my head
It's not the same, but I can't complain,
'Cause I don't know who I wanted you to be insted
And who's to blame for this new love I've found
I don't love you, but why don't you want me around
Yes I swear, I don't love you, but why don't you want me around(Chorus)
And if I feel all right, does that mean I should stay the night
And if I feel just fine, does that mean I should let it slide
I don't know, I don't know
'Cause I haven't been here before
You have, and you know that's not the sameIt may never be the same situation, me and you in this bed
It may never be the same, me telling you, you can go on right ahead
And who's to blame for this act of sinking so low
I don't love you, but I just can't let you go
Yes I swear, I don't love you, but I just can't let you go(Chorus)
And if I feel all right, does that mean I should stay the night
And if I feel just fine, does that mean I should let it slide
I don't know, I don't know
'Cause I haven't been here before
You have, and you know that's not the sameI guess I feel a little bit better
Knowing that this might really be the last time
But if I say less, does that mean there is less to say
And if I talk less, does that mean we don't talk at allIf I feel alright, I guess I could stay the night
If I feel just fine, well I guess I could let it slide
But I don't know, I don't know
'Cause I haven't been here before
You have, and you know that's not the same, not the same(Chorus)
And if I feel all right, does that mean I should stay the night
And if I feel just fine, does that mean I should let it slide
I don't know, I don't know
'Cause I haven't been here before
You have, and you know that's not the same
