

The Desert

The Yawpers

It came in the night without alarm and turned our bones to dust
We all knew it was coming though it was never discussed
    It's been a blast, but we're all out of time
    Watching the masses toe the company line
    They kill the gardens and dilute the sublime
    It's gonna take it man, and eye for an eye
        It came before we could tell
        Nothing we could do or say
    It took the children, and poisoned the wells
        There it goes, wasn't quiet or slow
The desert will put you on your knees for a little bit
    There it goes, curtain call for the show
    The desert won't leaving anyone wanting
When the sands came in they swallowed us whole
    But displayed our sins
One little piece to make sure that the dagger was in
    And even now that everything's gone
    You hear the echoes of the siren's song
The earth's abandoned and that's how it belongs
    An empty lot between the devil and god
    It left the shell but it tore out the guts
        Nothing we could do or say
    It took our shrines and covered em in rust
        There it goes, wasn't quite or slow
The desert will put you on your knees for a little bit
    There it goes, curtain call for the show
    And the desert won't leave anyone wanting
