

Tomorrow Comes

Edie Brickell

Sleepy eyes, it's time to rise
It must be well past afternoon
I know you got a wonderful view
I am familiar with the ceiling But when tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door
But when tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door
For sure Don't feel bad, the love that you had Just goes to prove that you are able
I know you got a terrible view
I am familiar with the feeling But when tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door
But when tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door
For sure, for sure, for sure Not too far from where you are Red leaves are floating from Sebastian
Everyday they fall away
Bright green is coming back in fashion And when tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door
But when tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door Tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door
And when tomorrow comes
You'll be stepping out that door
