

Boy Falls From The Sky

Reeve Carney

You can change your mind
But you cannot change your heart
Your heart knows when you're hiding
Your heart knows where you are I'd be myself
If I knew who I've become
You don't have to fly too high
To get too close to the sun
See the boy fall from the sky You will always be in front of me
Even as I disappear from view
For I have done not a single thing
Without the thought of you But not here, not now, no way
I'm not ready to give up the fight
If I can use a single thread to cross the sky
Then why's the eye of the needle
Still your arms tonight
See how the boy falls from the sky Oh oh oh
Oh oh oh The city conducts a symphony
I search through trash for a melody
That might lead us back to dignity
In this junkyard of humanity She let you go without regret
I will forever hold you always in my heart instead
Over the screams and the sirens wail
The only thing not up for sale Our love is like lights on a midnight train
Hurts like its thunder without no sound of rain
??? kisses your face
Your arms for the sacrifice, your arms for the grace
I hear your voice inside my head
I will listen to nobody not to no one else
From the bridge where we both stood and stole the view
????
These are the threads that bind you, ones you have to weave
They will hold us to our beliefs I believe
Believe
Believe
Believe
Believe
Believe
Believe

Believe

Songwriters

CLAYTON, ADAM / EVANS, DAVE / HEWSON, PAUL DAVID / MULLEN, LARRYPublished by Lyrics Â© Universal Music Publishing Group Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>