

Black Beauty

Nik West

Black Black beauty beautiful mind body and soul and everywhere in between ain't that what you see
She's a Black black beauty
Such a precious gift to behold
There's a story to be told
Wanna hear it here it goes Papa was a rollin stone
Mama had to work, she was always gone
So it wasn't long before the streets became her home
You see she was educated through urban exploitation
And graduated with honors
And now she's hopeless, left with brokenness
The streets ain't worth the pain they cause
Let me tell you who you are Her body's worth more than his words
But so well spoken they serve as tokens
Used to purchase a moment
And she's no wiser insecurities tend to blind her While reality seems to bind her
And now she's hopeless, left with brokenness
But he ain't worth the pain he cause
Let me tell you who you are Her strength of mind has the power to change the world
Instead she believes the lies that poison the soul Told she could never be, would never be Anything beyond what eyes could see
And for that pain, she medicates heavily
And now she's hopeless, left with brokenness
The drugs ain't worth the pain they cause
Let me tell you who you are

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>