Amen

Bon Jovi

Amen
Last night I had a dream
The dream I had was true
I fell through the stars
... Went walking on the moon
Burned like a thousand candles in her arms
The skin under my finger tips
Honeysuckle on her lips
Sweeter than a man deserves to taste
Mercy, mercy, what else can I say?
But Amen. Amen, Amen
Last night we were born together
It was like we'd always been
She'll be with me forever
If I don't see her again
We poured the wine until our cup ran over
Unfolding like a mystery
Inside of her like poetry

A thousand horses running through my veins
Mercy, mercy what else can I say
Amen, Amen, Amen
I laid down in her garden
Naked on her floor
Windows up, the curtains blowing
She don't lock the door
Amen, Amen
At the banquet table
A beggar at a feast
I felt her tongue between my lips
And I forgot to breath
We stayed there 'til the candles burned the carpet
Last night I had a dream
The dream I had was true
Mercy, mercy, what else can I say
Mercy, mercy, I laid down and prayed
