Lost Direction

Beecake

Im on this train again
Passing points I've passed, a thousand times
Watching the silver tracks
Counting all the cracks
I find in my mindAnd all I really need is youI go back many years
And visit all the tears
That pushed me down this road
I look at all the crossings
The left and rights of walking
Its a heavy loadAll the people I could have been
The past and places I should have seenBut all I really need is Yeah, all I really need isThere must be more to life
There must be more to try
Im running, yes, Im running
But Ive lost directionThere must be more to life
There must be more to try
Im running, yes, Im running
But Ive lost directionAll these places a train can give
With time and rhythm and ways to liveI wish that there were words that I could say
But poetry keeps getting in the way
To let you feel how I felt with that kiss
But the best that I can do is just sing this
The best that I can do is just sing thisAll I really need is youThere must be more to life
There must be more to try
Im running, yes, Im running
But Ive lost directionThere must be more to life
There must be more to try
Im running, yes, Im running
But Ive lost directionThere must be more to life
There must be more to try
Im running, yes, Im running
But Ive lost direction
