

Lark

Klezmorim

The golden ratio the shell
The stairs ascending round themselves
The trees rustle as if to kneel and listen
To the heartbeat of a lark or the lark in my heartbeat
    The oxygen in priestly green
    The answers dressed in labyrinthine
The telescopes atop the mountains of ecstatic vision listening
    To the heartbeat of a lark or the lark in my heartbeat
    I am assured, yes I am assured yes
    I am assured that peace will come to me
    A peace that can yes surpass the speed yes
        Of my understanding and my need

The meteoric warp and went
In counterbalance to the spark ever ascending
The arrow shoots forward though it moves through repetition
    To the heartbeat of a lark or the lark in my heartbeat
    What is it that drives the driven snow now?
    Upon whose temples with I rest my weary hopes now?
The rain distills down steeples fills the ears of lonely church mice with the Heartbeat of a lark or the lark in my heartbeat
    I am assured yes I am assured yes
    I am assured that peace will come to me
    A peace that can yes surpass the speed yes
        Of my understanding and my need
