Why Walk When You Can Run

Paul Weller

My son runs to the shore
To the world that lies before
He can't hear my sound
He's much to in tune with the groundHe sees only the tide
And the surf and the sea
He's oblivious to me callingIn years to come
I will still call him son
But he'll have no time to wait
He must see beyond his fateHe sees only the sun
And the wind make it free
His only defense will always beWhy walk when you can run?Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind my sonRun like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind my sonThrough sheets of time
Are the wings of a bird
He'll come to the edge
To look life in the eyesIs he holding the keys
To the world and his dreams?
His strongest defense will always beWhy walk when you can run?
Why walk when you can run?Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind my sonRun like the wind, run like the wind
Don't turn your back, no giving in
Run like the wind, run like the wind
Run like the wind my son
