The Saddest Song

Streetlight Manifesto

Well, it doesn't really matter if you lead or follow
Everybody's laughing like there's no tomorrow
And even if there was would you still go following your friends?
I don't know where we went wrong we're still singing that same sad songs
It's my life, not your life, I'll end it when I want
And now I'm off to save the world once again
But I don't know how I'll pull it off this time
I think I'm going to drown
Now he's off to save the world once again
But he don't know how he'll pull it off this time
I just know I'm going to drown
And it's the saddest song you'll ever hear, most pain you will ever feel
But you grit your teeth 'cause it don't get better than this know this
And you'll try to explain as the blood leaves all your veins
And you can't think of anything that you would change
"Stop, look and you will see", is what I think she said to me
I'm not too sure because it could have easily been a million things
But I don't know what she said, who knows what she said
Years passed since I've seen her face, 14 years were just erased
If my life was your life, would you ever take it back?
And now we're off to save the world once again
But I don't know how I'll pull it off this time
I think I'm going to drown
Now he's off to save the world once again
But he don't know how he'll pull it off this time
I just know I'm going to drown
Yeah, you will try to explain as the blood leaves all your veins
And you can't think of anything that you would change
And it's the saddest song you'll ever hear, the most pain you will ever feel
But you grit your teeth 'cause it don't get better than this know this
And you'll try to explain as the blood leave all your veins
And you can't think of anything that you would change

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/