

Where Will I Find My Heart Tonight

Lita Ford

I found hunger in the fields of plenty
I found freedom in a ball and chain
I found madness in the voice of reason
I found mercy at the hangman's gate, hey I've held the world in the palm of my hand
And watched as it slipped through my fingers like sand
Here I am alone again Where do I turn when all I see around me is a lie?
If I close my eyes, where will I find my heart tonight?
I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times
And I'm so cold inside, where will I find my heart tonight? I found peace in the heat of the battle
I found treason in the eyes of a friend
I found hate in the words of a preacher
I found fortune in a beggar's hands I close my eyes and pray for the light
To guide my way, into the night I fall
And the world is crashin' down around my soul Why do I turn when all I see around me is a lie?
If I close my eyes, where will I find my heart tonight?
I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times
And I'm so cold inside, where will I find my heart tonight? I have searched a thousand years
Through the darkness and the tears
And I don't think I can take another night
Without you here Where do I turn when all I see around me is a lie?
If I close my eyes, where will I find my heart tonight?
I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times
And I'm so cold inside, where will I find my heart tonight? Where will I find my heart tonight?

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>