I Saw You In the Wild

Great Lake Swimmers

i knew you in the wildyou were nervous, you were furious you were very sure-footed dreams and intentions full of wonder and amazement(?) the fire in your eyes you were in your disguise you were haunted you were hollow you could not see tomorrowin the wild,
i saw you in the wild
i saw you in the wild
i knew you in the wildin the books, in the trees you were spreading your own needs(?) and their hats all went off to you they were trying to show respect for you i was riddled with worry you were all in a hurry crystallized mess of things there was a fear in it and all a great(?)in the wild,
i saw you in the wild
i knew you in the wildholding onto high ideals living incongruously you were there among the leaves your needs were directing you and the wilderness, it spoke to you they were threatened to choke you you were always aware you could sense that i was therein the wild,
i knew you in the wildi could tell by your look you came from a book and i read many times all your funniest(?) lines and the branches with the sages i turned all the pages

we were two sets of eyes two fires burning behindin the wild,
i knew you in the wild
