

Entropy

Sid Sriram

Dusk darkness creeping in
Drops of rain stain clouds of white linen
Frail paper boats of hope try, to stay afloat against the natural tide
Starry eyed stupid, is how it all started and now it has to end

Melancholic views mixed with saturated stereotypes (x3)
This is the state of entropy, and all you can do is hold on

A desperate orange as the sunsets
And the streetlights start shining
A desperate scream as you undress
And these thoughts start rewinding, pleading
Give me back my sunshine, give me back my youth
Give me back my tears, and keep all your truths
Confused and chaotic is how it all started and now it has to end

Melancholic hues mixed with saturated skylines (x3)
This is the state of entropy, and all you can do is hold on

Lyrics Submitted by Koushik krushh

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>