Steppin' Stones

Lorrie Morgan

On the rocky road to love the goin' has been rough
I fall down but somehow I always got back up
I've climbed every mountain, crossed every valley too
I had a heart without a home but I kept on keepin' on Lookin' for a love that would be true
But they were all just steppin' stones to youWell, I have walked on mines when I should have read the signs
Sayin', 'Dead end, don't rush in' but I did every time
An' I started believin' that I was born to lose, oh, dont know
Oh, but those days are gone 'cause the love that you have shown
Has given me another point of view
Oh, but they were all just steppin' stones to youSteppin' stones, I've stumbled over hearts 'til I found, solid ground
It's so clear, ain't it funny that it took a trail of tears to get me here
Now with no stone left unturned I have finally learned
There's a reason, things work out the way they do
Yeah, they were all just steppin' stones to youI have no regrets for the paths I have walked
They all turned to sand now but you are my rockSteppin' stones, I've stumbled over hearts 'til I found, solid ground
It's so clear but ain't it funny that it took a trail of tears to get me here
Now with no stone left unturned, I have finally learned
There's a reason, things work out the way they do
But they were all just steppin' stones to youSteppin' stones, steppin' stones
