Addiction

Glenn Hughes

Let me breathe, my tired body
Let me sleep inside my bed
Don't let me fall into the darkness
While you weave your tangled webDon't leave me slain beside the gutter
Show me my flesh then lock me in
Then wash me down in holy water
Then close my eyes until I'm goneThrow my soul into the fire
Let my body burn in sin
It's so cold and I'm no liar
And it's all the same, all the same
It's just addictionYou can't deny the pain you're under
You know the wheel refuse to turn
Can't break that spell, you have to wonder
Can't walk away, you never learnDon't live that lie 'cos you can take it
You must have been some kind of man
I feel rage of your condition
'Cos you will find euphoriaThrow my soul into the fire
Let my body burn in sin
It's so cold and I'm no liar
And it's all the same, all the sameCan, can you taste your last temptation?
Your state of mind is filled with shame
And if you fail to shake your demon
Tormented life, no one to blameThrow my soul into the fire
Let my body burn in sin
And it's so cold and I'm no liar
And it's all the same, all the sameThrow my soul into the fire
Let my body burn in sin
And it's so cold and I'm no liar
And it's all the same, all the same
It's just addiction, just addiction, just addiction
