

Dim Halo

Greenwheel

Imagine no daylight, only the moon as your guide
When ours is to darkness
What forgotten sun is to bright
Eyes wide open now taking it all in stride And I can see your eyes when the stars hang low
Like a crown the moon wears a dim halo And to all my regret, I fair thee well
You came around too slowly as I fell
My screams can only echo off the walls
I see nothing left to break my fall
Break my fall And to bear the slings and arrows, my chances narrow
Just roll with the punches now, bruises can heal
Soften the blow 'cause I don't want to feel anymore
Just cancel out this fear And I can see your eyes when the stars hang low
And like a crown the moon wears a dim halo And to all my regret, I fair thee well
You came around too slowly as I fell
And my screams can only echo off the walls
Break my fall And I can see your eyes when the stars hang low
Like a crown the moon wears a dim halo And to all my regret I fair thee well
You came around too slowly as I fell
My screams can only echo off the walls
I see nothing left To all my regret I fair thee well
You came around too slowly as I fell
My screams can only echo off
Echo off the walls
My screams can only echo off
Echo off the walls
