Dim Halo

Greenwheel

Imagine no daylight, only the moon as your guide
When ours is to darkness
What forgotten sun is to bright

Eyes wide open now taking it all in strideAnd I can see your eyes when the stars hang low Like a crown the moon wears a dim haloAnd to all my regret, I fair thee well

You came around too slowly as I fell My screams can only echo off the walls I see nothing left to break my fall

Break my fallAnd to bear the slings and arrows, my chances narrow

Just roll with the punches now, bruises can heal

Soften the blow 'cause I don't want to feel anymore

Just cancel out this fearAnd I can see your eyes when the stars hang low

And like a crown the moon wears a dim haloAnd to all my regret, I fair thee well

You came around too slowly as I fell

And my screams can only echo off the walls

I see nothing left to break my fall

Break my fallAnd I can see your eyes when the stars hang low Like a crown the moon wears a dim haloAnd to all my regret I fair thee well

You came around too slowly as I fell
My screams can only echo off the walls
I see nothing leftTo all my regret I fair thee well
You came around too slowly as I fell

My screams can only echo off
Echo off the walls
My screams can only echo off
Echo off the walls
