I Get Weak

Westlife

My love, my heart
Oh, bruised and broken all alone
When we're apart I die inside
Oh, this room is like a battlefield of love tonight
I know I should be stronger but I lose all control
Fighting with myself trying to hide
What you don't know
But I get weak, I'm giving it all away
I know it's not wise to leave myself so open but
All the rules get broken in your eyes
I give it all up to you
And everything that's been keeping me together
Brings me to my knees, I get weak
One look, one touch
Oh, I'm helplessly pretending
You don't mean that much, it gets so hard
The waiting here forever with this shattered heart
Lying to myself trying to act like I don't care, no
The way it's killing me every time
That you're not there
'Cause I get weak, I'm giving it all away

I know it's not wise to leave myself so open but
All the rules get broken in your eyes
I give it all up to you
And everything that's been keeping me together
Brings me to my knees, I get weak
I get weak
And all the walls I've been building up
Crack and then break when you're around
I get weak, nothing I do to fight it matters now
I get weak, I'm giving it all away
I know it's not wise to leave myself so open but
All the rules get broken in your eyes
I give it all up to you
And everything that's been keeping me together
Brings me to my knees, I get weak
I get weak, I get weak
And all the rules get broken in your eyes

I give it all up to you
And everything that's been keeping me together
Brings me to knees
