Rearranged

Crimpshrine

Just think about it
Just think about itLately I've been skeptical, silent when I would used to speak
Distant from all around me who witness we feel and become weak
Life is overwhelming, heavy is the head that wears the crown
I'd love to be the one to disappoint you when I don't fall downBut you don't understand, when I'm attempting to explain
Because you know it all and I guess things will never change
But you might need my hand when falling in your hole
Your disposition, I'll remember when I'm letting goOf you and me, we're through an' rearrangedIt seems that you're not satisfied, there's too much on your mind
So you leave and I can't believe all the bullshit that I find
Life is overwhelming, heavy is the head that wears the crown
I'd love to be the one to, disappoint you when I don't fall downBut you don't understand when I'm attempting to explain
Because you know it all and I guess things will never change
But you might need my hand when falling in your hole
Your disposition, I'll remember when I'm letting goOf you and me, we're through and rearranged
You and me, we're through and rearranged
You're no good for me, thank God its overYou make believe
That nothing is wrong until you're cryin'
And you make believe
That life is so long until you're dyin'You make believe
That nothing is wrong until you're cryin', cryin' on me
You make believe
That life is so long until you're dyin', dyin' on meYou think that everybody is the same
I don't think that anybody is like you
You think everybody is the same
I don't think that anybody is like youJust think about it
You'll get it
