

Opened Once

Jeff Buckley

I once was open and one with a traveling heart
I loved this sweet guide
And just like the fiction rushing in your riverbed
Arise like applause in my headAnd in the half-light, where we both stand
This is the half-light, see me as I amJust like the ocean, always in love with the moon
It's overflowing now, inside you
And we fly right over the minds of so many in pain
We are the smile of light that brings the rainIn the half-light, where we both stand
In the half-light, you saw me as I amI am a railroad track abandoned
With the sunset forgetting I ever happened
That I ever happened
