

There Is Nothing

Don Brownrigg

overwhelmed under swept away things that we can but we won't really say two things are enough for me to know you want to leave and i can see how you'd go we'd find the part if we looked too deep but two hearts like ours are better left to their own mystery and if you think you're better left alone well if you want to leave, i can see how you'd go cause there's nothing to find here there's nothing to find here at least it is not making itself very clear
there is nothing
there is nothing
a heart'll stop if the blood runs too thin and we're caught and we're stuck in the thick of our own skin the second times are what makes you go slow so if you want to leave i can see how you'd go
cause there's nothing to find here
there is nothing
there is nothing
