Over & Over

Thurston Harris

I woke up eager to greet the day
And ask the questions that troubled me
Thinking you and I could work it out peacefully
And believe it was just that easy
Here we stand now on separate sides
It seems one thing we don't realize
Is that neither of us have made room for compromise
So we remain in contrary corners again
This is how we stay
Over & Over games we play
We could rise or give in
But is Over & Over happening again?
Am I to wonder what comes of this?
Or try to make sense of it?
Do these walls we build have any significance?
And will summer's birth bring difference?
So here we are waiting for June
I hear that we're humming different tunes
And we're still at odds in the middle of the afternoon

It seems this time will finally be the last time
This is how we've stayed
Over & Over games we've played
Compromise?
Not today
So Over & Over is what happens again
You complicate and you break down
I chew your words while you spit them out
We see the same thing but differently
Stuck in our separate realities
This is how we stay
Over & Over games we play
We could rise or give in
But Over & Over can not happen again
This is how we stay
Over & Over games we play
We will not ever win
So Over & Over & Over & Over & Over & Over is Over
