The Count

Corrected Visionaries

So many things to think about
So many things we've done
I've found how to remember them
I count them one by oneI count the stars and the broken dreams
I count my friends and the angry screams
I count the laughs and the falling tears
They all add up to passing yearsI'd count the times I've thought of you
But I can't count that high
You are the reason that I count
You are my reason why
You're the reason that I count
You're my reason whyThere's magic in that single thought
But I've had bad ones too
I've thought of myself all alone
In a sad life without youI count the smiles, and all those knowing looks
I count the laughs, and the unread books
I count the days that lie ahead of me
They all add up to what I'll beCount on me to count on you
Count on every thing I do
Life is simply love's amount
So help me keep the countSet aside the countless thoughts
And know one thing is true
No matter where my road may lead
I'll always count on you
I know I can, and so I will
I'll always count on you

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/