Alibi

Dave and Whitney

Girl you did what you had to do
And if I were you I'd have done it too
But there's more to life than trying to hid your black and blue

Saw it coming from a mile away
And your Jackie shades couldn't hide the pain
If anybody asks where you were last night
Here's your alibi

We were sitting there swinging on the back porch drinking red wine underneath that black top sky
Had our own little girl's night watching Real Housewives and the time flew by
And we'll say you had a flat tire and you were too tired
So you just spent the night
Last time you saw him he was doing just fine.
And that's your alibi
And that's your alibi

And the last call he ever made was just to say he was working late.
And anything that's after that I guess you'll have to ask a girl named Kate

We were sitting there swinging on the back porch drinking red wine underneath that black top sky
Had our own little girl's night watching Real Housewives and the time flew by
And we'll say you had a flat tire and you were too tired
So you just spent the night
Last time you saw him he was doing just fine.
And that's your alibi
And that's your alibi

Maybe he went drinking and drove that Nova in the muddy river
Somebody he pushed to far wasn't scared to pull the trigger

We were sitting there swinging on the back porch drinking red wine underneath that black top sky
Had our own little girl's night watching Real Housewives and the time flew by
And we'll say you had a flat tire and you were too tired
So you just spent the night
Last time you saw him he was doing just fine.
And that's your alibi

And that's your alibi

We were sitting there swinging on the back porch drinking red wine
Had our own little girl's night watching Real Housewives
And that's your alibi
And that's your alibi

Well you did you what you had to do
and if I were you I'd have done it too.
