

I'll Never Forsake You

Caleb Garraway & Katie Garraway

Oh soul are you weary from wave upon wave,
Of grief and affliction whom no man can save,
Has sickness surrounded or unending night, uncertainty stolen your joy and your might.

Oh doubting, oh fearful remember His care
the helpless and hopeless need never despair, for from your afflictions His glory shall spring,
the deeper your sorrow
the louder you'll sing.

Remember your Father,
His promise, His love
I'll never forsake you,
this pain will not break you
for I will remake you
for unending joy.
My promise is faithful
though now it is painful
No power can trample my covenant love.

Remember your Savior,
His grief and His pain,
the lonely affliction unmerited shame.

Though you had betrayed Him
He died in your place.
The joy set before Him, He offers by grace.

Remember your Father,
His promise, His love
I'll never forsake you,
this pain will not break you
for I will remake you
for unending joy.
My promise is faithful

No power can trample my covenant love.

I'll never forsake you,
this pain will not break you
for I will remake you
for unending joy.

My promise is faithful
though now it is painful
No power can trample my covenant love.

Remember, your father,
his promise, his love.
