Fall Down Easy

Uncle Tupelo

Disengaged, we're forsaken now communication does suffer
The moral stare of big brother not a chance, no compromise
Battling the barrier of belief not to try anymoreDon't want to murder the only memory or hide
Try to accept that it's all worth while
When you've been disengaged, severed from any world that's mineYou can hang the blame on the wall
It'll be a frame around us all deluged by stickers and billboards
The conversation turns to war, never thought it would come down
To this it seems every person for them selfDon't want to murder the only memory or hide
Try to accept that it's all worth while
When you've been disengaged, severed and forsaken
When you've been disengaged, severed from any world that's mineMore and more makes a hunger for less
You get hurt when you touch the bright lights burning
When you're high you can fall down easyToo many years spent trigger happy at times
I feel betrayed I feel that I've been wronged
Suspended in all disbelief until it seems it just can't go on
