

Stone Cold Heart

Honky Tonk Hustlas

when this old life gets you down and you feel like the devil is hanging around want to be left alone for that black heart Angel she might take you home this world is tough and life is hard and it's hard living your life with a stone cold heart yeah you know the world is tough and life is hard it's hard living your life with a cold and broken heart I've tried drowning my misery in the booze cuz my love she told me that we were through his heartache I got will not end and my last bottle of whiskey is empty again this world is tough and life is hard and it's hard living your life with a Stone Cold heart yeah you know this world is tough and life is hard and it's hard living your life with a cold and broken heart [solo but mostly fiddler] despair and misery are my pain cuz my lonesome existence is filled with pain I thought a new low would set me free but it opened up my heart to a new agony this word world is tough and life is hard and it's hard living your life with a stone cold heart yeah this world is tough and life is hard and it's hard living your life with a cold and broken heart I'm tired of this life and being alone so I'm going to take my path and leave it on my own with a cold steel barrel to my head I take a shot of whiskey and make it all end [then gunshot]

Lyrics Submitted by caleb

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>