

Two Introverts

Nowherebound

Two Introverts

Iâ€™ve been waiting out this stormâ€
Grasp at roses, still picking out the thorns
Follow me down to where the sidewalk ends,
Bring your instrument, some paper, and a pen
Iâ€™ll write you down.

Iâ€™ve been dying in this living roomâ€
Rehearse the second chance while dancing gospel in the gloom
Harvest the grapes before they start to sour,
Make the minutes last as the second hand of this clockâ€
Betrays the hour

I still miss you babe, the world just gets louder everyday,
Miss those quiet years, just taking turns, two introverts, whoâ€™dâ€
Kiss away the rainy moods, under covers, bravely lovers swooned
Weâ€™ll seize the day tomorrow, love, but onlyâ€
Only if you like

I remember all those silent nightsâ€
Took quiet comfort in the stillness of those pretty eyes
The colors danced kaleidoscope waltzes in the sun,
And I fell for you that moment, knowing Iâ€™m notâ€
The only one

But the last heart left me bleeding outâ€
Staining red these verses sung aloud
Growing cold with each song written down
And in the sun, Iâ€™m on the run
And the last train left here speeding outâ€
Whistled goodbye all rails leading south
Breaking hearts with each mile rolling down
And in the sun, sheâ€™s on the runâ€.

Iâ€™ll write you down
