Fashionable

Raining Jane

Black belt, brown shoes
Color blindness makes me blue
Sweater in the summer time
Oh honey you don't look soâ€¦.
Relentless doubts they vacilate
Fruitless attempts keep me awake
And I wonder why I never left
That muddled room that stagnant space
Standing out but fitting in
Your fashion sense it wears me thin
No longer an accessory
No longer your jewel
I'm not hanging off your wrist anymore
Because I look better without you
(You wear me out)
Galvanized by what you wanted
Faded shadows scraped and thwarted
Fallen statues blamed and broken
Your belt's on backwards but I never noticed
The angst inside seeps through the surface
You're a bad habit better left unserviced
(You wear me out when you wear me out)
I look better without you
(Don't even put me on
I want to take it off, hang it up)
I look better without you
