Too Uptight

Graham Coxon

Once there was a nothing
The voices rang so true
The knowledge that was lacking
Cut innocence in twoEverything seemed too good to be right
When I was 16, I was too uptight
Now disappointment's shadow
Reveals a colder timeA harder kind of living
In disillusion, how can it go?
The fear of the night
Now I am grown, I'm just too uptightA slow and noble breakdown of personality
Careless, heartless, soulless, no dignity
My days are flown and I can't recall
Feeling so alone was I so uptightDeath creeps ever closer a darkness falls in me
A scared fragmented loner unholy
A night with no end an echoing sea
I'll think about me how I'm too uptight
