Horizon

Ducktails

The last time I laid my eyes upon you
You were blowing kisses and I was waiting in the car
Something had died yet everything around kept turning
Don't even know where you areSomewhere along the line we lost our horizon
I've been looking 'round up and down to no avail
And someday I hope to find the horizon
I've been all around the world and nothing is clearThe last time I held you it was head to heart
The curtain was drawn, I left you sleeping so sound
If I had known forever after we would stay apart
I would have whispered all the things I can't tell you nowSomewhere along the line we lost our horizon
I've been looking 'round up and down to no avail, no avail
Someday I hope I can find the horizon
I've been all around the worldI don't believe in you like I so wanted to
I hope you're asking the heavens above
To forgive all the damage you've doneAnd if I did teach you anything at all
I hope that you learned how to love
But I doubt if I'll ever talk to you, I don't knowSomewhere along the line we lost our horizon
I've been looking 'round up and down to no avail, no avail
Someday I hope we can find the horizon
I've been all around the world and nothing is clear, no, no, no, noNothing is clear to me now at all
Nothing is clear, oh nothing is clear
Nothing is clear to me now at allNothing is clear, nothing is clear
Oh, nothing is clear to me, nothing is clear
Nothing is clear, nothing is clear, nothing is clear
