

Nefertiti

Mark Weinstein, Mark Weinstein

Nefertiti claimed she needed no one at allMajestic in her empire like so many I've seen rise and fall

 Suitors by the dozen, even one who'd give her everything

 Assuming the queen even needs a king

 And what's so wrong with freedom? Is there a cost too high?

But the slogans turn to mist in Nefertiti's eyesAnd the heart of the lioness lay down gentle like a lamb

 Her Majesty runs like a girl, no composure or command

 And I know I should be glad for her but I can't forget her fire

It just makes me lonely, one more Goddess to retireNow I have been brought down by less

 That felled my mighty lioness

 But what I see which makes me sad

 Is when the loneliness gets bad

 She has to run, she cannot take

That fragile fundamental acheAnd the heart of the lioness lay down gentle like a lamb

 Her Majesty runs like a girl, no composure or command

 And I know I should be glad for her but I can't forget her fire

It just makes me lonely, one more Goddess to retireAmazed she puts me in my place

 A royal tear rolls down her face

 But what for me may hurt worst of all

 Is one less soldier on the wall

 That much lonelier for me

As I salute my fallen queenWhen the heart of the lioness, lay down gentle like a lamb

 Her Majesty runs like a girl, no composure or command

 And I know I should be glad for her but I can't forget her fire

 It just makes me lonely, one more Goddess to retire

 No one should be glad for her for I can't forget her fire

It just makes me lonely, one more Goddess to retireNefertiti claimed she needed no one
