

Wind In the Wire

Randy Travis

I'd been riding fence all day
Way up on the summer range
Found a place to make my bed
As the evening shadows spread
Beyond the campfire light
Through the stillness of the night
Came the call of a coyote choir
And the song of the wind in the wire
As it strummed the rusted strand
It sang of long forgotten things
Many moons and many suns of the real Americans
When the arrow and the bow stopped the reigns of buffalo
And call of the coyote choir
And you know the song of the wind in the wire
--- Instrumental ---
As the ghostly balladeer hypnotized me I could hear
Bugle calls and battle cries, broken promises and lies
The spirits of the plain still sing their sad refrain
And the call of the coyote choir
And the song of the wind in the wire
Spirits of the plain still sing their sad refrain
And the call of the coyote choir
And the song of the wind in the wire...
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>