Harmless Faux

Gostwyck

I donâ€™t know where to go, where iâ€™m running to escape,
you still look the same,
though we have seemed to change.

Slow your heart down, can you let it go?
Youâ€™ve got friends that I, that I used to know, that I used to know.

Talk, we donâ€™t talk now, but as it seems weâ€™ve been talking so much, heâ€™s now rolled away the stone that has kept it in.

Slow your heart down, can you let it go?
Youâ€™ve got friends that I, that I used to know,
that I used to know.

Iâ€™m made of stone in this hardened home, in the place your living still where nothing seems to grow and you gave your soul to this harmless faux, as youâ€™re searching for the man that you said iâ€™d always be.

Slow your heart down, can you let it go?
Youâ€™ve got friends that I,
that I used to know,
that I used to know
