Brother

Racoon

It's four o'clock, the rain has stopped
He's in to deep, he ran out of luck
Nowhere we can goAnd his old friend, they left a spot
Because of the little time he's got
Not that they ever warn, thoughIf you can't give her space
We're afraid it's too late
You got to let her go now
Or we can't help you, brotherAll he thinks, the love is gone
They're broken hearted
They must be strong, you still got usWell, there's this yearning in the stomach
Pain and doubt about why she done it
And pride, that tells them to shut upIf you can't give her space
We're afraid it's too late
You got to let her go now
Or we can't help you, brotherIf you're willing to fight
Than you're make it alright
You just got to let her go now
Or we can't help you, brother
