of Montreal

It's different for girls
They got sensitive language
They build miles of defenses
They're not numbed by oppression
It's different for girls
From when they are children
They're depersonalized
Aggressively objectified
They want to make a scene
They want to be adored
And then they want to be left alone
When they get bored with that
It's different for girls
They are mercurial creatures
Not a masculine dissonance
Or sexual currency
Though some women are demons all of them are gods
Though some demons are women
For every one psycho bitch
There's ten thousand aggro pricks
It's different for girls
It's different for girls
They don't spit on the street
They don't piss on the seat
They don't have to size up every person they meet
Or create an elite
Or poison the game so no one else can compete
They are chaos and mystery and they like to combine them
Sometimes they act crazy but that doesn't define them
It's different for girls
They're not expected to fight
They're expected to sit
And take some lesser man's shit
No it don't feel right
No it don't feel right
Though some women are demons all of them are gods
Though some demons are women
For every one psycho chick
There's ten thousand hateful pricks
It's different, it's different, it's dif-fer-ent
Yeah it's different for girls.
It's different for girls.
