All At Once (It's Not Important)

Secret Machines

Underneath the sun there is a light
I'm feeling light but I can't move
My heart's still in a crescent veil
A watchful haze in the rushing nightA silver studded torn and tattered gown
She ruled the room and I just stared
A warning roaring miles above
Hanging over a worn-out nightAnd though the words we spoke were few
We were feeling something strange
I swear I thought you knew
Then you said, "Darling, how could you?"Remember back when we first met, it don't mean much
All those things you said, you never meant, it don't mean much
How could I forgive and just forget? It don't mean much
And all that time we spent I swear we wasted, it don't mean muchAnd all at once it's not important
What fell in place just falls apart again, I guess
Not having, I can only hope
It's only time and you know I'll wait'Cause then it's like when we first met, it don't mean much
All those things I said, I never meant, it don't mean much
But how could you forgive and just forget? It don't mean much
And all that time we spent you said we wasted, it don't mean much
