

Sometimes I'd Wish You'd Tell a Lie

Bobby Meader Music

Thank no one but yourself for finding out what helps the stress
And don't count on anybody else
Your lips move as time passes on by
Sometimes I'd wish you'd tell a lie
But don't question the morale of a broken man You talk all about the orgasms you faked
But you only hurt yourself cause all of the drugs you take But no one knows how bad it gets I don't categorize
the glazed look in your eyes
Because I thought I understood you just fine
And you'd talk about how they were so mean
But you probably wrote them off like their feelings were worth nothing
