The Days

Josef Salvat

I have lived with another's arms
Pulling me up till I learned to stand
On my own two feet, with my own ideas
And my own beliefsHearts are broken, nations fall
Youth's bright burn, time eats at all
But still it starts back up again,
It never endsBridge:
Look at me now, I'm here before you
I finally found the guts to start with nothing to lose
Nothing to hide and everything to proveChorus:
When it takes all you've got, what you're made of
And you learn that the soul has got to change
So you throw all your cards out the window
And carry on, making it up on the wayFrom the rule you forget by tomorrow
To the countless doubts, the heights, the blame
Till you learn how to love and to be loved
These are the days and you're living them your wayEvery time I try to find the right words,
Describe the mess, make the sentence heard
I'd hit another wall, such a narrow mind
Down we fallSure it's a risk to take it this far
But how else do you know what the limits are,
What the dark feels like. I know the crowd holds court
But they're not always rightBridgeChorusLights on, it's clearer now
I wouldn't change a thing
I wouldn't change a thingChorus
