

Born a Beggar

Skid Row

As the day breaks through the doorway
And I'm still chained to this house
But you call me and I follow
And act like I'm so proud Still reading the sidewalk
And it smells like morning news
And I don't know why I still can't
Seem to pull away from you Watch the window
Time means nothing
Watch the window
Till I see you coming Born a beggar will you ever
See me more than Pavlov's hungry dog
See no colors live another
Day to feed on everything you are and you are When the day sleeps and the sunshine
No longer burns my eyes
And the sound of your footsteps
Is the only thing that lies Between me and the feeling
That life fills these four walls
That cage me completely
Just waiting on your call Watch the window
Time means nothing
Watch the window
Till I see you coming Born a beggar will you ever
See me more than Pavlov's hungry dog
See no colors live another
Day to feed on everything you are
On everything you are I run for you a fall so hard
My secrets are buried in the yard Born a beggar will you ever
See me more than Pavlov's hungry dog
See no colors live another
Day to feed on everything you are Born a beggar will you ever
See me more than Pavlov's hungry dog
See no colors live another
Day to feed on everything you are On everything you are
On everything you are
On everything you are
