True Star

Caroline's Spine

when i look at the sky, it all gets so heavy and the reason why is an endless journey and sometimes it just seems so far awaythen i look in your eye and i find a place it seems as vast as outer space and i find myself with one thing left to saythat you are my only true star shine with all your might guide me through this lonely nightand i want whatever you want and after all we've said and we've done maybe, i think, it's time you came with mesometimes when i wake up i feel so heavy and getting off the floor can be such a journey until i remember why we ran awaythen i pretend to see your face and i strike up interesting conversation to steal your heart when you find me in your doorwayyou are my only true star shine with all your might
guide me through this lonely nightand i want whatever you want
maybe, i think, it's time you came with me... then i remember why we ran away
... then i remember why we ran away
... then i remember why we had to runbecause you are my only true star shine with all your might
and after all we've said and we've done maybe, i think, it's time you came with me
