Comparison Kills

Jonathan McReynolds

Hmmm
Mmm... mmmmm
MmmmmmI can only speak for my world
Where almost everyone has what they need
Other nations live with sickness
But over here we die from jealously'Cause it makes you chase what's not meant to be chased
'Cause you've possessed it all along
It comes to steal
And hide what is real
Comparison killsMmmmmm
You spend all night admiring pictures
They make life look perfect as they should
But you don't know the picture's story
And how long it took to make it goodIt makes you consider shoes you don't like
But when that shoe doesn't fit
Wear what you will
Despite how they feel
Comparison killsThe grass was fine
Until it looked greener on the other side
Now you're believing that you fell behind
But why try to match what should be one of a kind
You're one of a kindWe all want to be successful
And get mad when God's not in a rush
Waste your time just making copies
You'll see you did not accomplish much
Pressure gets hot
And with heat come mirages
So you think it's cool over there
Your thirst is real
But water can't fill
What comparison killsHe feels what you feel
So ask God to heal
What comparison killsCan I be indulgent like a songwriter?
Can I say one more line one more time?Pressure gets hot
And with heat come mirages
So you think it's cool over there
Your thirst is real
But water can't fill
What comparison killsI'm done. Thank y'all
