Burn

Ray LaMontagne

Oh Mama, don't walk away I'm a goddam sore loser I ain't too proud to stayBut I'm still thinking 'bout you And I'm so lonesome without you And I can't get you out of my mindOh Mama, don't leave me alone With my soul shut down so tight Just like a stone cold tombAin't it clear when I'm near you I'm just dying to hear you Calling my name one more time? Oh, so don't pay no mind To my watering eyes Must be something in the air that I'm breathing Yes and I try to ignore All this blood on the floor It's just this heart on my sleeve that's bleedingOh Mama don't walk away You leave me here bereaving From the words so hard and plainSaying the love that we had Was just selfish and sad Yes, but to see you now with him is just making me madOh so kiss him again Just to prove to me that you can I'll stand here and burn in my skinYes, I will stand here and burn in my skin
