

Fat Cat

Boy George

Another song of woe
Woe sounds like this You say nothings changed
Where were you when my world
Was spinning into masquerade?
You claim it's just a question of mathematics
I shut the door on your amateur dramatics Then you think too much
And you talk too much, vicariously
Yeah, you think too much
And you talk too much
Every word is substance free You're the dirt on my collar
You're the hole in my favorite shoe
You're the last dying breath of love
You're the weight that I need to lose And you hurt yourself You say I'm deranged
I'll admit to being strange
But I just can't stop loving you
If the light in your eyes
Addiction came as a surprise
Didn't think I'd be so into you Then you think too much
And you talk too much, so carelessly
Yeah, you think too much
And you talk too much
Every word is substance free You're the dirt on my collar
You're the hole in my favorite shoe
You're the last dying breath of love
You're the weight that I need to lose You're the dirt on my collar
You're the hole in my favorite shoe
You're the last, last dying breath of love
You're the weight that I need to lose You're the dirt on my collar
You're the hole in my favorite shoe
You're the last dying breath of love
You're the weight that I need to lose

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>