

Cinderella (She Said Her Name)

Bob Sinclar

She said her name was Cinderella from under her umbrella with the blues.
he said his name was Mr Dumpty
but she could call him Humpty if she chosed.
then queried "œwasnâ€™t it a pity that dear old new york city was more and more resembling a zoo?â€•

Humpty talked of birds and berries
the Staten Island ferry and the moon.
Cinderella showed her blisters as she told him of her sisters and her broom.
and how she sweated with the sweeping while they were always out and reeking of perfume.

Hey, hey, hey, did you lose your shoe?
hey, hey, hey, did you lose your shoe?

And as the sky was clearing
he asked her most endearing to the ball.
she said she didnâ€™t have a skirt Ä±n a voice that was quite curt but he could call.
but she never gave her number she just left him there to wonder by the wall.

Hey, hey, hey, did you lose your shoe?
hey, hey, hey, did you lose your shoe?

We all know Cinderellaâ€™s story of her fortune and her glory very well.
and of Mr Dumptyâ€™s fall
from his perch upon the wall no need to tell.
but after close inspection
I canâ€™t help but pose the question "œmaybe Humpty Dumpty jumped instead of fell?â€• heâ€™ll never tell.

Hey, hey, hey, did you lose your shoe?
hey, hey, hey, did you lose your shoe?
