

A Million Light Year

Micah P. Hinson

When you are a million light years away and you think less of me every day

I'll remember the way the sun would run across your face and how I wish time would stand still for another day and some lonely day you'll write me and say it never was hard to love the boy who stole my heart away and some lonely day I'll write you and say, it never was hard to love the girl who stole my heart away
