No One To Share The Blame

Josh Gracin

I can count a hundred reasons why
But ninety-nine would still be shy
Of a good excuse for why you're gone
The truth will burn you when you know you're wrong
It's hard to face what you regret so holdin' on was better than Livin' life and losin' you
I guess, a liar can't escape the truth
So why was I so surprised?
That you found a way to finally get on with your life
And trade the lows for the highs you deserve
I'm all alone with things I can't change, yeah change
And no one to share the blame
I'm tired of feelin' sorry for myself of payin' rent in this livin' hell
I guess it is time I started facin' facts
Chances are you are never comin' back
What gives me the right to keep up this fight

You found a way to finally get on with your life
Trade the lows for the highs you deserve
I'm all alone with things I can't change
And no one to share the blame for your pain
For the cost of your cryin'
Can't undo what I did
There is no use denyin'
So why was I so surprised
That you found a way to finally get on with your life
Trade the lows for the highs you deserve
I'm all alone with things I can't change, yeah change
And no one to share
And no one to share the blame
I can count a hundred reasons why

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/